Greetings to Phi Eta Sigma members, prospective members, advisers, and parents. I am delighted to share with you that Phi Eta Sigma is thriving and continuing to evolve as one of the major academic honor societies represented on college campuses today.

Plans are being finalized for our next biennial convention, to be held in Knoxville, Tennessee, in October 2010. Phi Eta Sigma is governed by a constitution and laws generated by student delegates attending the convention. At the convention, the student delegates elect the officers and Executive Committee members of Phi Eta Sigma.

We are particularly pleased to have three outstanding student members of the Executive Committee – Brad Lee, Sam Morin and Lindsay Painter – currently serving. All three attended our off-year Executive Committee workshop and have been very involved in planning and shaping our 2010 convention. The student members serve as an invaluable source of guidance for our Phi Eta Sigma administrative functions.

Each year, we build on the previous year to strengthen our achievement of the Phi Eta Sigma mission of encouraging and rewarding academic excellence in the first year of collegiate study. At the off-year Executive Committee workshop, the Committee members have laid the foundation for the future. We will bring to the 2010 Convention an opportunity to move Phi Eta Sigma forward with a goal to enhance the title of Grand Secretary-Treasurer with the more up-to-date title as Executive Director. This enhancement is in keeping with the current administrative title and role of most nationally-accredited honor society office heads.

To the past, current and future members of Phi Eta Sigma, we pledge to continue to move Phi Eta Sigma forward and keep the organization contemporary while simultaneously honoring the wisdom and vision formed by our founders in 1923 in the motto “Knowledge is Power.”
A New Title—A New Beginning

by Elaine Powell
Executive Director

You must be asking yourself, “So who is this new Executive Director?” Obviously, many of you have no prior knowledge of or acquaintance with me. But if you are a chapter adviser or officer, you may know me as “the voice” on the phone or the person who responds to your e-mail. I’m usually the one who answers questions about membership orders, account balances, requirements for membership, scholarships, supplies, chapter contact information, Phi Eta Sigma publications and Web site, national conventions, membership verification, and just about anything else that chapter leaders and members may ask. I have been doing this in my position as executive assistant to Grand Secretary-Treasurer Jack Sagabi in the Phi Eta Sigma national office for more than thirteen years.

Growing up in a rural area of southern Kentucky, I had few opportunities for academic recognition or scholarships. With much sacrifice and penny pinching, my parents and I paid my way through college. Attending a community college for my first two years, I was privileged to be inducted into Phi Theta Kappa, an academic honor society for students attending two-year institutions, and served as chapter vice president during my sophomore year. That was my first taste of honor society involvement.

After earning an associate degree, I married the love of my life, who was serving in the U.S. Army at the time, and I began my junior year at Austin Peay State University just across the state line in Clarksville, Tennessee. As a married lady, I was not particularly interested in campus activities and organizations. But at the end of my senior year, I was invited to be inducted into The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, a recognition that I very proudly accepted. My Phi Kappa Phi membership is one of my most highly valued academic achievements. I am extremely pleased that Phi Eta Sigma has a strong relationship with Phi Kappa Phi and promotes the outstanding opportunities that Phi Kappa Phi makes available to upper division students who excel academically.

Even though I had earned a master’s degree at Western Kentucky University and worked several years in various positions in or related to education, such as high school teacher and public librarian, Phi Eta Sigma was unfamiliar to me. Then in 1996, I was offered the position of executive assistant to the Grand Secretary-Treasurer of Phi Eta Sigma. At that time, I had no idea of the scope and prominence of this honor society that would come to be such an important part of my life.

Working with Jack Sagabiel for more than thirteen years has been a fantastic experience. He has educated me in the history and purpose of Phi Eta Sigma, in addition to many other life lessons. Some of my favorite “Jack” quotes include: “You can’t sell it if you don’t have it” (referring to keeping plenty of merchandise in stock) and “Never let the facts get in the way of a good story.” Although he has now retired from his full-time duties, I am so thankful that Jack will continue working at the national office on a limited basis during this year so I can continue to benefit from his advice and mentorship.

Our office staff for these past several years has included Marge Sagabiel and Ria Butts, making us an amazing team that is highly productive and efficient. Marge’s warm smile has welcomed students and chapter advisers to Phi Eta Sigma national conventions since the 50th anniversary celebration at the University of Illinois in 1973. We are sorry to see Marge step down to pursue other interests, as she has been Jack’s “right hand” in running the national office for eighteen years. We wish her much happiness as she takes this well-deserved break from work.

Last May, Ria and I were privileged to join the Executive Committee on Sanibel Island, Florida, for its off-year meeting, where we had the opportunity to get better acquainted with the committee members. Upon Jack’s resignation as a full-time employee and his recommendation of me, the Committee voted to employ me as the new Executive Director of Phi Eta Sigma. What a thrill and an honor it was for me to learn that those esteemed educators and students were entrusting me with this important role. I take this responsibility very seriously, because the actions and operations of Phi Eta Sigma have the potential to affect the lives of thousands of students each year.

Ria has also taken on added responsibility and now works full time as records manager. She oversees our membership database and makes sure that every order for memberships, merchandise, and supplies shipped from the national office is accurate and complete. We are pleased to announce the addition of Tina Whitlow as the new executive assistant and hope you will get to know her and feel comfortable with her too. As we make transitions in the national office, I feel confident that we can do so seamlessly with chapter leaders seeing no interruption in service and communication.

The accomplishments of Phi Eta Sigma over the past eighteen years have been due to the superior guidance of Jack Sagabiel. We have made great strides in growing the honor society larger and stronger, more prominent in the academic arena, and better able to provide financial assistance to outstanding students who excel in academics, leadership and community service. My vision for the future of Phi Eta Sigma is to continue and expand on these achievements. Even now we are working on new ways to better communicate with chapter leaders and members, to manage our membership records more efficiently, and to process orders for memberships and merchandise more quickly and accurately. As we step into a new era, my goal as Executive Director is to maintain the traditions and spirit of Phi Eta Sigma as established by the founders in 1923, while updating our operational procedures to meet the needs of today’s universities, chapter advisers, and students.

Now that you know who I am and what I hope to accomplish—won’t you join me?
January 5, 2010, was our last full-time day in the national office of Phi Eta Sigma—Jack as full-time Grand Secretary-Treasurer and Marge as an assistant. Jack will continue as part-time Grand Secretary-Treasurer until the next national convention in Knoxville, Tennessee, in October 2010.

As we sat at our desks on that day, Father Time helped us reflect on the day we first moved into the office space so generously provided by Western Kentucky University during the Thanksgiving weekend of 1991.

It was at that time that the national office was moved from Auburn University, where it had been under the outstanding leadership of Grand Secretary-Treasurer James Foy and his wife Emmalu since 1948.

Our forty-year “partnering for success” with Phi Eta Sigma began in 1970 with the chartering of the Western Kentucky University chapter, continued in 1986 when Jack was elected Grand President and scholarship chairman, was furthered in 1991 when he was elected Grand Secretary-Treasurer and editor of the FORUM, and was energized when he was honored to serve the Society as president of the Association of College Honor Societies from 1997 to 1999. The ACHS celebrated its 75th anniversary in 1998.

During our time with Phi Eta Sigma, we have been privileged to observe tremendous growth in the organization and in the benefits and opportunities provided to its members. Through the years, the Executive Committee and our legion of dedicated chapter advisers have worked in concert to ensure that Phi Eta Sigma continues to justify being the outstanding first-collegian-year honor society that it has been historically.

High points from every academic year since 1923 are numerous; however, the growth of the Founders Fund national scholarship program and the expansion of the family of Phi Eta Sigma chapters continue to highlight every year. Another special Society highlight is the fellowship enjoyed at our biennial national conventions and leadership workshops.

The Executive Committee established the Founders Fund in 1938 and produced enough income to award Robert Voris of Penn State University a $300 scholarship for his use during the 1940-41 academic year. Careful Executive Committee management of Founders Fund investments provided the opportunity to touch the lives of seventy-five Phi Eta Sigma members with a total of $285,000 in endowed scholarships and awards for the 2009-2010 academic year. The assets in the fund have grown from $520,000 in 1991 to a current value of $4 million.

Since the decade of the 1990’s, the Society has chartered sixty-eight new chapters and rechartered five. A number of campuses are currently in the planning phase to charter a chapter. During that same period, the number of annual initiates rose from 23,207 in 1991 to 29,494 in 2009.

The Executive Committee has provided the resources and leadership for the Phi Eta Sigma administrative office to function efficiently and to promote the growth of the Society and the opportunities for our members nationwide.

We have worked diligently to leave Phi Eta Sigma just a little bit stronger than it was when we first became active in the management of the national office. Thanks to all of you who have made our opportunity possible. It has truly been a pleasure.

We believe that the best is yet to come.

New Chapters Installed

Since the 2009 FORUM was published, Phi Eta Sigma has chartered one new chapter and reactivated three chapters. Several campuses are in the planning phase pursuant to chartering their chapters.

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH FLORIDA

Tampa, Florida
April 7, 2009

The University of South Florida was founded in 1956 as the first public university established specifically to address the needs of Florida’s rapidly emerging urban regions. Today, the University of South Florida system is comprised of two separately accredited institutions, USF and USF St. Petersburg. The university records that its federal funds for academic research and development increased 213 percent from 2000 to 2007.

USF serves more than 39,000 students and offers 228 degree programs at the undergraduate, graduate, specialist and doctoral levels, including the doctor of medicine, through its eleven colleges. Jessy Rosenberg provided chapter chartering leadership. Phi Eta Sigma joins Omicron Delta Kappa (leadership and scholarship), The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi (campus-wide upper division and graduate scholarship) and Beta Gamma Sigma (upper division and graduate business) with an active chapter on the University of South Florida campus.

University of South Florida charter leadership featured chapter adviser Jessy Rosenberg and students Ojas Rawal, Michael Kotarinos, Michael Massengill and Tony Diepps.
The institution’s history began in 1848 when The University of Mississippi – the flagship university of the state – opened its doors to its first eighty students. The university is experiencing a renaissance unparalleled in the institution’s 160-year history. Dramatic growth in its endowment, a huge jump in funding for research, and an explosion of innovative new academic programs make The University of Mississippi one of America’s great public universities. Nearly 110,436 living Ole Miss alumni and friends represent every state in the nation and eighty foreign countries.

Mr. Patrick Perry, long-time chapter adviser at the University of Memphis prior to becoming Director of the Luckyday Scholarship Program at Ole Miss, assisted Dean Scott Wallace with his role as chapter adviser for the rechartering. University dean of students Dr. Thomas “Sparky” Reardon is a special colleague of Phi Eta Sigma and all honors recognition programs on the Ole Miss campus. Phi Eta Sigma joins Omicron Delta Kappa and The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi along with other societies on the Ole Miss campus.
The University of the District of Columbia is, at once, very old and very new. The seeds of higher education for the District were planted in 1851 when Myrtilla Miner founded a school for colored girls. In 1879, Miner Normal School became part of the public school system. Since then the school’s educational options have evolved into the university programs of study we know today. The university currently offers undergraduate, graduate and professional degrees in the arts and sciences, business, engineering and the school of law.

Dr. Bertha Minus and Mr. Esteban Olivares provided the chartering leadership and are serving as chapter advisers. Dr. Allen L. Sessoms, president of the university, shared a keynote address with the charter membership and special quests. Grand Secretary-Treasurer Jack Sagabiel presented a brief history of Phi Eta Sigma prior to presenting the chapter charter to Dr. Minus and chapter president Christopher Montana.
Ole Miss membership was a perfect fit for John Michael Horlock, who shared his academic recognition with mom and dad, Rita and Mike Horlock.

Joseph Stephen Rausch upholds his family tradition for excellence at Ole Miss while sharing his Phi Eta Sigma membership certificate with mom and dad, Stephen and Sandy Rausch.
The University of the District of Columbia awarded charter member recognition to Michael Desta, shown here with his aunt Berhan Kahsay-Jones and uncle Howard Jones.

UDC charter member Vincent Sumner is the beneficiary of Phi Eta Sigma recognition and shares his special moment with mom Karen and dad Donald.
2009 Chapter Activities, Projects, and Leadership

Again this year, local chapters of Phi Eta Sigma have reported their many excellent activities and projects. It is clear that Phi Eta Sigma, through its members, makes a valuable contribution to the recruitment and retention of good students on campuses nationwide. The emphasis on promoting scholarship, exercising strong organizational skills, participating in campus and community help projects, and developing innovative programs to fit each local campus never fails to impress Forum readers.

Many chapters send in newsletters directed to local members, and these, too, are remarkable for their concept and their execution. Phi Eta Sigma members are making a difference at their schools and among their fellow students, and that difference is for higher standards and citizenship values. Members will certainly continue to make differences in their homes, their communities, and their chosen careers after they leave the campus; and these differences will be to the benefit of families, friends, and fellow citizens. The following are all-too-brief summaries of the reports of chapter of champions’ leadership, activities, and projects sent to the national office by press time.

The Duquesne University chapter touches lives thanks to the vitality of 235 members. These members meet once a month, and the executive board meets twice a month to participate in or discuss upcoming school functions, service projects and ideas for social events. The chapter’s leadership role includes numerous service events such as Up ‘til Dawn (raising money for children with cancer), Adopt-an-Animal program and Relay for Life (a walk for cancer), as well as numerous school functions including Freshman Parent Weekend and Spring Clean-up.

Gannon University’s chapter of Phi Eta Sigma is the largest organization on campus. Members are proud of this fact and continue to foster the organization’s good name and reputation. Phi Eta Sigma is known for its service, from making Christmas cards for wounded soldiers to holding clothing drives throughout campus. It is known for academics and leadership. Members are not only active in Phi Eta Sigma but also in many other organizations across campus. Most of all, it is known for their community. Social events include seeing the campus plays, participating in campus activities, having holiday parties, and even spending a day at a ropes course. Students enjoy being members of Phi Eta Sigma, but what they love the most are the experiences they have had, the people they have met, and the memories that will last a lifetime.

Jacksonville State University’s annual Phi Eta Sigma induction was held April 8, 2009, with approximately two hundred family members and friends joining the fifty-five new inductees. They enjoyed the formal ceremony followed by a reception and short business meeting. The chapter awarded campus scholarships to seven members who have maintained perfect 4.0 GPAs during their college careers: Richard Barker, Jeannette Castillo, Kathryn Hindman, Cain Kirk, Cassandra Lindsey, Ashley Thomas, and Jennifer Wood. The officers attended fall and spring preview days to speak with potential students about Phi Eta Sigma. Members also set up a table and talked with entering freshmen and their parents during summer orientation sessions.

The Kansas State University chapter of Phi Eta Sigma built up momentum over the 2008-2009 year. Struggling with low levels of member involvement, the chapter decided to focus on participating in existing community service projects. During the holiday season, members helped sort food donations at the Flint Hills Breadbasket, a local food distribution center. Once a month, the chapter ran Second Helping, a dinner hosted by a local church to feed the less fortunate of the community. Members prepared and served a hot dinner meal and packed sack lunches for the people to take on their way out. To increase the retention of recruited members, the chapter sent an informal letter along with its induction letter, explaining its chapter goals and recent activities. Also, a social get-together was held before finals week to give new members a chance to meet and hopefully remember PES when the meetings started again in the fall. Evidenced by the three- or four-fold increase in active memberships this fall, the strategy seems to have paid off.

The Kennesaw State University is focused on rebuilding campus awareness and presence. Emphasis is on new service activities, such as care for elderly residents of local nursing facilities. The chapter was the recipient of the SABAC funding for the third year in a row to co-sponsor the university-wide, first-year convocation program.

The Penn State University chapter leadership reports a special project involving a young lady from Russia. She was a sophomore student, paying her way through college by holding down two jobs. Those who evaluated local scholarship applications were very impressed with this student’s letters, although the upper class students obviously had more chapter involvement. Following a special meeting of the chapter officers, the chapter was able to award this student a $500 scholarship, bringing the total number of chapter scholarships awarded last year to four. Penn State chapter leaders were very pleased to be able to provide assistance to such a deserving student.

The University of Puget Sound chapter continues to share its fellowship with the community by assisting with the Puget Creek Restoration project, donating to local food bank centers, tutoring those who need a little special academic help, and holding its own Feeding the Homeless project. The upcoming Twister Tournament will be among the highlights of the school year.

Phi Eta Sigma was featured in a display in the main entry of the Southeast Missouri State University library in spring 2009. Members displayed publications, a key, a membership certificate, commencement honor cords, and a chapter t-shirt.

The Southwest Baptist University chapter of Phi Eta Sigma hosts an annual induction ceremony, two academic forums, and one service activity each year.

The Stephen F. Austin State University chapter of Phi Eta Sigma meets monthly to review project options. The membership participated in the campus clean up, in the Relay for Life breast cancer research fundraiser, and in making hand-made valentines for residents in a local nursing home.

Tau Beta Pi, the engineering honor society, selected the following Phi Eta Sigma members for $10,000 graduate fellowships for the 2009-2010 school year: Kristin Busa (Syracuse University), Jerry Bradley, Jr. (University of South Alabama), and Dane Grisner (North Carolina State University). Phi Eta Sigma members who will receive Tau Beta Pi cash awards of $2,000 for use during their senior engineering year include Ritchie Acosta (Lamar University), Evan Cherry (Texas A&M University), Travis Ducheneaux, John Heine, Crais Ording, and Patrick Satchell (South Dakota School of Mines and Technology), Katherine Kodrick (University of Toledo), Zachary Lam and Casey Still (Auburn University), Trevor Layh (South Dakota State University), Theresa Murray (The Catholic University of America), Salman Fraqui and Phong Pham (New Jersey Institute of Technology), Caleb Serafy (Binghamton University), Justin Bennett (The Ohio State University), Brendan Kirkpatrick (California State University, Long Beach), Brian Holman (North Carolina State University), Matthew Pierce (Ohio Northern University) and James Polans (University of Illinois at U-C).

The University of Utah chapter president, Emily Iwaski, reports the Phi Eta Sigma Honor Society has enhanced its position in the community through several service projects performed throughout the school year and enjoyed an amazing induction ceremony and banquet. The first service project of the year was a visit to Primary Children’s Hospital. Members of the chapter volunteered as chaperones and guided the children as they trick-or-treated their way through the hospital. They also enjoyed planning and creating a Children’s Carnival for the children at the local YWCA women’s shelter. It was a rewarding experience for everyone who participated to see the joy and excitement on the children’s faces. The chapter also focused its services on a local organization that aids the families of those with cancer. The Cancer Wellness House partnered up with the chapter to serve concessions at a Real Soccer game, of which a portion of the proceeds were donated to the organization. Finally, with an impressive number of inductees, the chapter benefited from an inspirational speech given by the guest speaker at its annual induction ceremony banquet. Judge Andrew Valdez, a juvenile court judge and author, spoke of the power of education and the honor that follows achievement and support. Coming from a difficult background, Judge Valdez truly exemplified and highlighted the qualities that the Society possesses and emphasizes: service, scholarship, and leadership.

The Western Illinois University chapter of Phi Eta Sigma, the oldest freshman academic honorary in the nation, conducted its 2009 induction ceremony at the University Union Lamoine Room during Family Weekend on Saturday, October 3, 2009. Chartered in 1973, the Western chapter is the 174th of over 360 chapters nationwide. Eligible students—those who had earned a minimum 3.5 grade point average in a program leading to a bachelor’s degree during their freshmen semesters—were contacted, and nearly one hundred responded, according to William Knox, chapter adviser and master of ceremonies. Approximately fifty inductees participated in the ceremony, as did the Phi Eta Sigma student executive board officers: president Brian Demijan (Burlington, Iowa) a senior accounting major; secretary Call Vonk (Chillicothe), a junior special education major; treasurer Ken Jenke (Downers Grove), a senior accounting major, and senior advisor Michael Kwiatkowski (Mundelein, IL), a law enforcement and justice administration major. Vice president Secalee Kruse (West Point, Iowa), senior psychology major, was unable to attend, but Kristyn Lepek (Elmwood Park), a junior art, major assumed the ceremonial role in her place. One hundred thirty relatives and friends of the inductees also attended. Barry Witten, professor in curriculum and instruction (and Phi Eta Sigma member), gave the keynote address entitled “Meeting Challenges in a Changing World.” Glenn Haynes, Department of Economics; Christopher Pynes, Department of Philosophy and Religious Studies; and David Zanolla, Department of Communication nominated by Phi Eta Sigma members, were inducted as honorary members. Western Illinois President Al Goldfarb and College of Arts and Sciences Interim Dean Sue Martinelli-Fernandez welcomed the inductees and guests. Current members of Phi Eta Sigma and the Student Honors Association helped with set up, check in, and photography after the ceremony.

The University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire chapter leadership schedules monthly general membership meetings, bi-weekly executive board planning meetings, and monthly service projects and social gatherings. During the past year, the chapter presented more than $700 in local scholarships and submitted a successful scholarship application to the national competition (Rebecca Fencl was the recipient of a $1,000 award). The chapter also sponsored three lecture programs, including one for Honors Week. Other chapter events included four information meetings for potential members, two membership drives, one major induction ceremony with banquet, an officer transition dinner, and a finals “study break” awareness event and member recognition.
Southeast Missouri State University chapter leaders Deane Buckingham, Niki Tomlinson, Janet Corcoran, Kelsey Powell, and Zarah Ahmad conducted the recent chapter induction.

Phi Eta Sigma memorabilia was featured in a display in the main entry of the Southeast Missouri State University library during spring 2009.

With the 2009-2010 school year came numerous forms of exciting entertainment at The University of Alabama. In April, I was ecstatic to learn that I had been elected president of Phi Eta Sigma! After the news settled, my fellow officers and I immediately started thinking of fun projects to do for the upcoming year. In August, it was time for these fun projects to begin.

Every year at the university, the week before classes begin is designated Week of Welcome. This year, August 14th through 19th were five days of learning, meeting wonderful people, and enjoying college the right way. Phi Eta Sigma helped kick off Week of Welcome by sponsoring a movie night: “Ferris Bueле's Day Off” under a beautiful, starry Friday evening. We intended to show the movie on the Quad; however, because of rain the location was moved to the Ferg Plaza, a perfect setting. Hundreds of students gathered on blankets, on stairs, and in chairs to watch a classic 1980's movie about a high school wise guy determined to skip school and have a wild day of fun. Delicious pizza, thirst-quenching drinks, and Flavor-Ice popsicles courtesy of Phi Eta Sigma accompanied the movie. We were so proud of the turnout and the success this event welcomed!

Two days later, Phi Eta Sigma joined Alpha Kappa Psi Professional Business Fraternity and The Residence Hall Association to collectively put on the Lot at Plaza Live. Plaza Live gives new and returning students the chance to obtain information about UA’s honor societies, clubs, and sports teams by walking through rows of tables—while also receiving drinks, treats, and prizes! At the Lot we had six tables set up with carnival-style games, ranging from lassoing a pole, to taking pictures with cutout celebrities, to ringing a fishbowl and winning a goldfish. Our members took pictures, passed out prizes, and manned the booths to create a great success of a night! At one point in the night I had the opportunity to walk around and kept hearing people ask, ”Where's the goldfish booth? I want to win a fish for my dorm room!” After all, fish are the only pet allowed in UA on-campus living.

After Plaza Live, our next task was to inform more students of the infinite opportunities available to our members. We did so on October 6, 2009, at Honors Preview Night. Here we passed out information packets, displayed an elaborate scrapbook of the past year of our chapter, and answered questions from the eligible students.

Our next upcoming event was Beat Auburn, Beat Hunger in October and November. Because of the overwhelming support from PES members, we donated nearly two hundred pounds of canned goods last year, and we hope to up the ante this year. Also this semester we’ve planned to make Good Samaritan Christmas boxes and participate in the Angel Tree donations. Last year we collected over sixty boxes, the largest donation by any secular group in the Tuscaloosa area. I am confident that this year will be an incredible year for Phi Eta Sigma and all of our members. PES volunteered over six hundred hours with community service and communitywide projects during 2008-2009 year, and I hope to be even more involved this year. Roll Tide!
The Florida State University chapter’s 2008 Fall semester commenced with the assignment of over thirty executive and committee members by president Theresa Price and adviser Chris Boyd. Two workshops, featuring guest speakers from The Florida State University, were held in September focusing on leadership, team building, time management and communication skills. Also in September, our chapter was invited to several freshman socials to share opportunities available through membership in Phi Eta Sigma and other Florida State University recognized honor societies.

As September came to an end, chapter members prepared for the National Convention, held October 3-5 in Louisville, Kentucky. The Florida State University sent eighteen members—the largest group at the convention—to represent its Phi Eta Sigma chapter. Special recognition must be given to our newly elected national Executive Committee member Lindsay Painter and her predecessor Heather Reif, who has served in that national position for the previous two years and was acknowledged as Phi Eta Sigma’s national Scholar-Leader of the Year 2009. Congratulations to them both. The Florida State University is proud to have such representation.

November also marked a new focus for service by our chapter with the introduction of our new Peer Academic Leader (PAL) program. After receiving approximately twenty hours of training, members are eligible to be placed in a growing selection of university programs to provide volunteer peer advising, mentoring, note taking, or tutoring. The program is a university-wide effort that integrates the Division of Undergraduate Studies with many academic degree programs and Student Affairs. Its purpose is to make important academic resources and accurate information more accessible to students through trained peers.

In October we tabled at a Halloween themed Library Event on Landis Green to raise student awareness about on-campus resources and student organizations.

We held a yard sale in mid-November to fundraise for the next convention and other events. Phi Eta Sigma spread the word throughout the Tallahassee community through Craigslist and flyers in the months preceding the event. Members donated many of the items that were sold and spent an evening preparing for the sale. With much effort and teamwork we were able to accomplish our goal, raising more than $500.

In December, the chapter prepared for its last two fall events: the Tutoring Extravaganza and honor cord sale. As finals week approached Phi Eta Sigma members volunteered their time and expertise for an evening of tutoring in liberal studies math, science, and economics. An honor cord sale was held during the final week of the semester to give graduating seniors the opportunity to obtain their Phi Eta Sigma cords to wear proudly during graduation.

The Florida State chapter of Phi Eta Sigma blasted into 2009 with a series of events centered on Honors Week. At “Battle of the Brains” four members of each honor society were quizzed on academics, school trivia and pop culture. Other activities included a service project at Mission San Luis and “Golden Opportunities,” a showcase event for University sanctioned honor societies.

Our first ever “Black and Gold Affair” social was held in early February to get prospective members more informed about Phi Eta Sigma while providing a great opportunity to meet and interact with officers from the chapter.

This year’s induction ceremony was a remarkable celebration. Attendance by inductees and their families well surpassed our expectations, and the Grand Ballroom at the University Center Club was nearly filled to capacity. Everyone shared in the excitement that filled the room as certificates and honor cords were given out and pictures were taken. Based on inductee nominations Dr. Joseph Calhoun, Dr. Pamela Robbins, and academic adviser Linda Burns received Service Excellence Awards for their contribution and commitment to the freshman class.

During the induction ceremony we were honored to have Dr. Helen Burke, Director of the Florida State Honors Program, as our keynote speaker. Dr. Burke spoke about using Phi Eta Sigma as an opportunity to pursue our goals both as college students and in life after graduation. After the ceremony, everyone was invited to a reception welcoming new members and their families in a fun and social environment. You can view our Induction Ceremony on-line at https://campus.fsu.edu/bbcswebdav/xid-1304918_3.
On April 6, 2009, the chapter held a general meeting to introduce our new inductees to Phi Eta Sigma opportunities. Attendance again surpassed our expectations. In a large room filled to standing room capacity with members eager to get involved, Dr. Mark Ziegler, communications professor at Florida State, kicked off the meeting with an inspiring keynote address. Later, our chapter officers introduced themselves and talked about how to take the next step to participate in the numerous opportunities Phi Eta Sigma can offer. The event was also a good occasion for members who were unable to attend the induction ceremony to pick up their materials and ask questions about leadership positions with our chapter.

This summer, Phi Eta Sigma Peer Academic Leaders (PALs) served as peer advisers and assisted at registration for students at orientation. Our chapter also conducted several planning meetings, sat on a panel presenting Greek organizations, spoke to the university’s 350 Summer-Bridge students, collaborated with the university library to expand tutoring services for 2009-2010, served on a committee charged with developing a campus-wide tutor-training program, participated in several university-wide outreach events, took steps to begin accepting member applications on-line, prepared for our first fall 2009 leadership workshop and general assembly, and welcomed Florida State’s incoming freshmen at the New Student Convocation.

Our chapter has had another amazing and productive year. We will continue to embrace new members, experiences and challenges that better our chapter, our community, and ourselves.
The Bernard Baruch College chapter of Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society entered the 2008-2009 academic year with one goal in mind: to make a difference in our own and off-campus community. Throughout the year, we hold many career-related events with Baruch’s Starr Career Development Center. With events, such as “Making the Transition from Student to Professional” and “Regional Certified Public Accountant Fair,” we provide various opportunities that allow our members to prepare for the real work environment. Monthly meetings are designed to inform members of the countless opportunities available at Baruch and update them on Phi Eta Sigma activities.

Baruch members are also given exciting and memorable opportunities to give back to NYC communities. In 2009, Phi Eta Sigma partnered up with the Ronald McDonald House for the first time to... host a holiday activity for thirty young cancer patients and their families. Phi Eta Sigma specially arranged an "Easter Scavenger Hunt" in the common room of the House. Lined up against the wall and anxious to collect as many eggs as possible, the kids (ages four to ten) raced across the room with their families diving under couches, over tables and in between seats to grab whatever treasure they could find. On top of that, the children were provided with baskets filled to the brim with books, candy, stuffed animals and more eggs. For the older kids who didn't have a curfew, the special night was extended in the playroom with a craft event, where everyone created their own unique crowns from scratch. Not only was the event extremely successful in making the kids happy, but they also in effect brought the volunteer members of Phi Eta Sigma closer together as they all contributed to bringing to the faces of parents and children alike. Phi Eta Sigma will continue to host the Ronald McDonald House event annually for years to come.

In addition, in 2009, the Phi Eta Sigma Baruch chapter joined with Junior Achievement in an effort to educate students and young individuals about the basic business concepts of financial literacy, entrepreneurship, workforce readiness, and the alike. On March 27, 2009, Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society volunteers showed up at PS 230, an elementary school in Brooklyn, New York, to be teachers for a day. Besides the academic work, the students also played fun and educational games. The volunteers had a chance to bond with the students and share their experiences and challenges as freshmen at Baruch College.

Hands-on community service programs like Junior Achievement and the Ronald McDonald House are part of what Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society at Baruch College is about. For the current academic year, 2009-2010, Phi Eta Sigma aspires to bring more of these opportunities to its members, in an endeavor to make a difference in our community.
Recently, students at the University of the District of Columbia (UDC) were invited to charter a Phi Eta Sigma chapter. Those who qualified jumped at the chance to have their studies recognized in an official way. As has been done 364 times before, the students needed to establish a constitution, elect officers, and decide what membership in Phi Eta Sigma would mean at UDC. In the course of that first meeting, a direction was set for the chapter that will make it both unique on campus and an asset to the university community as a whole. Simply put, the students in the room decided to focus on those who were not in the room; those could not join.

There is something special about being a member of an honor society. At graduation ceremonies particular attention is paid to the students who cross the stage weighed down by medallions, cords, pins, and stoles. Those accessories tell the audience the wearer is smart, intelligent, or at least a good student. If the graduate to follow wears only the black gown, bereft of accessories, he will blend into the crowd, as easy to forget as the robes he rented for... the occasion. This dynamic may also be found outside of commencement. In class, or on campus, the honor student stands out. She always seems to know the right answer, and her classmates turn to her for help. Another student in the class is just the opposite. He is often wrong when he offers an answer and does his best to avoid giving them. If he makes it to graduation, he will likely be one of the masses in plain black.

Accomplishments often throw into sharp relief that which has not been achieved, much as strengths may betray weaknesses. In the case of UDC, the strengths are numerous though oft overlooked. The university boasts a dedicated faculty who, with little fanfare or appreciation, diligently go about the hard work of educating students at various stages of college preparedness. The school employs administrators who strive to keep costs low while continuing to provide a world-class education. Finally, and perhaps most importantly, UDC's greatest asset is a student body possessing unparalleled diversity. A typical class will contain a recent high school graduate, a student who witnessed Dr. King’s “I have a dream” speech, and an international student working double time to master both language and course content. For all these accomplishments the school also has corresponding weaknesses. A reflection of the school system that feeds it, most students place into remedial classes and need extra help to reach true college preparedness. Many UDC students have been out of school for decades and have trouble readjusting to an academic schedule. These challenges contribute to lackluster academic achievement, low graduation rates, and a sea of plain black gowns. It was with these challenges in mind that the UDC Phi Eta Sigma constitution was altered to add a commitment to expansion and recruitment.

The late senator from Minnesota, Paul Wellstone, had a saying, which he repeated almost daily: “We all do better when we all do better.” Honor societies are often separate from the student body and introverted. If the focus is simply recognition, it is inevitable that these groups will only look after themselves and will focus exclusively on meetings and graduation supplies. To many, if not most, this process is both natural and acceptable. They may argue that the cream will always rise to the top, and there is no practical use for a homogenized student body with honor students woven closely together with non-honor students. However, because the trappings of graduation day do not serve as regular day-to-day attire, after graduation the honor student and the ‘D’ student are both simply graduates. An employer who is underwhelmed by the ‘D’ student’s interview will certainly be less than impressed when the honor student’s application graces their desk with the same alma mater. Thus, for those who need more than altruism to motivate a bucking of the trend, there is a clear self-interest in all ships rising together.

Honor societies may be defined by their membership standards, but those who are not invited to join also serve as a window to the commitment of the honor society to its university. The honor students at UDC choose to make a commitment to improving the academic achievement of all students and to that end will be creating programs on campus to connect honor students with students who are struggling and need a hand. It is the intention of the chapter to aggressively honor its newly ratified constitution and increase the pool of potential society members. This may be much easier said than done—as the song says, “talk is cheapest when the story is good”—but if any group is positioned to address these problems it is Phi Eta Sigma whose members have demonstrated strong study skills and an ability to adjust to college life.

As exemplars of academic excellence, it should be the goal of every honor society to contribute to the academic success of the student body. The activities of an honor society should be directed at enriching the student body in such a way that the honor society might increase its membership. Recognition is important but, in Phi Eta Sigma, it is also inevitable. Members inducted in their freshman year will have three years or more before graduation when they will receive their medallions and cords. In the intervening semesters there is so much work to be done if a decision is made to do it.

Members will surely get discouraged when a study session is unattended or a workshop draws only a few participants. The saying, “You can lead a horse to water but you cannot force him to drink,” is especially relevant when dealing with activities that are designed for long term academic success. On the other hand, that frustration should not lead to a decision to remove the water entirely, to cease being a resource for fellow students.

The University of the District of Columbia is unique in the details but like other institutions in the issues. As the only Historically Black College in Phi Eta Sigma, as well as being situated in a dynamic city with a wildly diverse student population, UDC approaches academic issues with particular strengths and weaknesses. However, the underlying issues are present at all universities. Every class has struggling students, every school has weaknesses as well as the strengths to counter them, and every honor society must decide what it means to be a member—how they will leave their mark on the college.

Other chapters of Phi Eta Sigma have undoubtedly begun their own programs to address the preeminence of the plain black gown. With a chapter for every day of the year, UDC cannot possibly be the first to address this issue. The Phi Eta Sigma community, through sharing of ideas, activities and programs that have helped to increase membership, can increase the effectiveness of its efforts. A national dialogue and sharing of best practices would contribute significantly to chapters at their naissance such as UDC and established chapters who would like to tweak and improve their outreach efforts.

Paul Wellstone’s point still rings true. For better or worse the fortunes of communities are tied to one another, and universities are no exception. The challenge exists in recognizing those ties and acting as a member of the community as opposed to the exception. This is a challenge for all chapters of Phi Eta Sigma regardless of where they are located or whom they serve. It is a challenge to be a catalyst of a rising tide, mindful that the fortunes of each ship are our own.
The Indiana University – Purdue University Indianapolis chapter of Phi Eta Sigma kicked off the year in August with the annual Officers’ Dinner at T.G.I. Friday’s with all of the officers and committee members in attendance. During the first weeks of school, we participated in two events to get the word out on campus about who we are and what we do. The first was IUPUI Weeks of Welcome Fest where we set up a booth to welcome students back to campus, advertise our organization, and give students a chance to win prizes by playing ladder golf. The following week, we set up a booth to talk to potential new members at the Student Involvement Expo.

Our first community service event took place in September as we participated in IUPUI’s United Way Day of Caring. We partnered with Keep Indianapolis Beautiful and mulched and trimmed trees around several I-65 ramps downtown (after hiking to the site about two miles from campus!). For the fourth year in a row, we were the largest group participating in the event.

October brought our seventh year of participating in the Coats for Kids drive, an annual citywide event to collect new and gently used coats for needy kids in Indianapolis. We collected about a hundred coats and delivered them to Tuchman Cleaners, who then cleaned and delivered them to their final destination at the Indiana State Fairgrounds for distribution to the community. In addition to this event, our members teamed up with Indy Parks and Recreation for the fourth year in a row and worked at the annual three-day “Hauntless Halloween” at Holliday Park to provide a non-scary but entertaining Halloween for Indianapolis children. Members served as trail guides, crafts assistants, and refreshment servers.

November is Homeless Awareness Month in Indianapolis, and our chapter collected socks for the homeless and delivered them to a local shelter for distribution. In December, we “adopted” a local family through the Community Centers of Indianapolis and provided them with gifts and food for the holidays. This is our biggest event of the year; we all meet on a Saturday and shop for gifts all day and then spend the evening wrapping them and having dinner together.

Our shelters are overflowing with homeless animals due to the bad economy, so another November project involved helping out the local Humane Society. We have many animal lovers in our midst, so we decided to collect items such as toys, food, and blankets as donations. We also had forty members volunteer at the shelter on four different dates. We plan to volunteer at the Humane Society again during spring semester.

In addition to our community service events, we have teamed up with the IUPUI Honors Club for the second year to sponsor monthly “Brown Bag” lunches covering topics of interest to our members. These have included areas such as study abroad, how to prepare for medical school, and how to prepare for graduate school.

Day of Caring – It’s What We Stand For

by IUPUI Chapter Leadership
We’ve also had a variety of speakers at our monthly meetings this year with plans for more next semester. The founding dean of our new Honors College spoke to our members about opportunities available through honors study, and a staff member from Housing and Residence Life talked about employment opportunities available in student housing; we have many honor society members already working as resident assistants in our campus apartments. We also plan to have a self-defense workshop led by a local world champion karate expert.

Finally, we want to mention that we had two $6,000 national Phi Eta Sigma scholarship recipients in 2009, Morgan Mills and Lindsay Stiller! And we’re looking forward to making the road trip from Indianapolis to Knoxville for the 2010 Phi Eta Sigma National Convention and Leadership Workshops in October! We always have a great time at the convention and come back inspired with new ideas and new friends from chapters all over the country.

Day of Caring is only one of the community and campus service projects conducted each year by the IUPUI chapter.
Student Members of the Executive Committee

Student delegates and chapter advisers convened at the University of Illinois on November 23, 1928, for the first national convention of Phi Eta Sigma. A unique strength began to evolve for our Society with that first convention. That strength was the realization by student delegates that real accomplishments are measured by responsibility. Phi Eta Sigma has become the beneficiary of this continuing responsibility.

This strength continues and perpetuates itself today through the vitality of student members elected to the Executive Committee. The 1970 Louisiana State University Convention amended the constitution to add a student to the committee and elected Larry Jones of Southern Illinois University, who served until our Golden Fiftieth Anniversary Convention in 1973, hosted by the University of Illinois.

At the Auburn University Convention in 1974, the constitution was again amended to provide two student members; and the 1980 University of Florida Convention increased this number to three. From the beginning, Phi Eta Sigma has placed faith in the good judgment of its student members and has found that faith to be fully justified.

The Nominations Committee of the 2008 Austin Convention recommended a team of three student leaders for election to the Executive Committee. Meet these elected student leaders, review their credentials, and you will appreciate the strengths of our Society.

He also works with the local youth of his community, mentoring incoming students throughout their first year at the university. Sam is involved in the Student Alumni Relations Board and Freedom By Design, a humanitarian design organization that rehabilitates homes for the disabled or handicapped.

Lindsay Painter is a student at The Florida State University, where she majors in fashion merchandising and minors in business. Originally from Jacksonville, Florida, she attended art magnet schools, including the nationally recognized Douglas Anderson School of the Arts, where she was a theatre major. Last year she was director of recruitment and induction for her Phi Eta Sigma chapter, and this year she serves on the president’s team as director of homecoming. Lindsay holds membership in other campus honor societies but is most enthusiastic about her leadership role in Phi Eta Sigma, both at the chapter level and on the national Executive Committee.

Fortieth National Convention and Leadership Workshops: Composing Tomorrow’s Perspective

October 1-3, 2010
Knoxville, Tennessee

What is your perspective? What do you see when you look ahead to tomorrow? With Phi Eta Sigma, your perspective can broaden and intensify in many ways. For a few days next fall, your perspective can encompass rolling hills and smoky mountaintops with just a touch of gold and orange beginning to appear in the trees. As you drive along country roads with those mountains only a few miles, you approach a city in the foothills and glimpse the golden glow of sun reflecting from a giant sphere perched atop a tower. A short distance away is a beautiful river winding its way along the city’s edge. A massive football stadium decorated in orange overlooks the river.

This can be your perspective during early October 2010, when Phi Eta Sigma student members and chapter advisers converge on Knoxville, Tennessee, for the next biennial National Convention and Leadership Workshops. The Crowne Plaza Knoxville will be our host hotel, and the University of Tennessee chapter will welcome attendees as they arrive at the airport and hotel on Friday, October 1. Those who arrive and register Friday afternoon will have an opportunity to participate in roundtable discussions led by members of the Executive Committee.

Friday evening activities will begin with a dinner buffet at the hotel. The first official convention business session will follow dinner, after which committee meetings will be organized. Convention delegates and alternate delegates will have the opportunity to serve on, or chair, important Society administrative committees, including the Finance, Constitution, and Scholarship Committee; the Nominations Committee; the Future Directions Committee; and the Publications and Promotional Committee.

The Friday evening activities will include a convention highlight, the ever-popular ice cream social. This social provides the opportunity for chapter advisers, student delegates, and student alternate delegates to exchange specialty gift items from their respective campuses and chapters, such as T-shirts, pens, pencils, stickers, etc.

Saturday’s convention agenda will begin with a breakfast snack at the convention hospitality center. Following the morning business, our Executive Committee student members and other Society leaders will present workshops on a variety of topics. Committee meetings will complete our morning’s agenda. The convention luncheon will feature the presentation of a number of individual and chapter awards.

In keeping with our national convention tradition, following lunch we will board chartered buses for a narrated tour of the University of Tennessee campus and historic Knoxville. Stops on the tour may include the Frank H. McClung Museum, Mast General Store, and the dazzling Sunsphere at the World’s Fair Park. Convention attendees will also have the opportunity to tour another unique... attraction—the electrifying Women’s Basketball Hall of Fame, which features an assortment of hands-on interactive experiences, along with the history and personalities of the growing sport of women’s basketball.

The Crowne Plaza will prepare a hearty breakfast buffet for us on Sunday morning, October 3, before we complete our business and go our separate ways. Our final business session will consist of reports from each of our convention committees, including the election of the Grand President and Grand Historian, plus one at-large chapter adviser member and three student members of the Executive Committee. The democratic nature of our Society governance is one of Phi Eta Sigma’s strongest assets. Student delegates provide a new perspective on the Society’s future by making decisions and sharing ideas at each convention.

As we prepare for the 2010 national convention, let’s remember that we are also preparing for ways to enrich the lives of academically motivated students at campuses nationwide by providing Phi Eta Sigma Honor Society recognition, scholarships, and leadership and service opportunities. What is your perspective of tomorrow? When you leave the 2010 Knoxville convention, your perspective for Phi Eta Sigma will be clearer, brighter, and more focused than ever before.

Greetings Fellow Members of Phi Eta Sigma:

Let us begin by saying what an amazing opportunity you have awarded each of us. It has truly been a privilege and pleasure to serve as your representatives on the Executive Board of our great organization. We have learned much and grown together over the last year and know we will continue to grow and leave a lasting mark on Phi Eta Sigma in the year to come.

In October 2010, Phi Eta Sigma will reconvene in Knoxville, Tennessee. In light of the rich cultural landscape of our host state and of the turning points that our organization now faces, we have chosen “Composing Tomorrow’s Perspective” as our convention theme. This theme will permeate everything about our convention, from the convention shirts and programs to our Saturday afternoon outing. Also, as part of setting the tone for tomorrow, we will be having a convention philanthropy project for the first time in many years. We have chosen a high school instrumental and a high school choir program in Knoxville to be the primary recipients of our efforts, as each is in need of our aid, as well as other school arts programs within the Knoxville City School System.

Austin/East High School is located in a low income area of Knoxville. The instrumental programs at A/E are in need of funding to purchase music, method books and other needed materials for the classroom and also to help with the high cost of instrument repair and replacement. Funding will also be used to offset the fees that are charged to students who participate in clinics, solo and ensemble festivals, and participation fees for other events and competitions. For these students, our help will enable them to perform at their best through better instruments, better music, and by allowing them to enter competitions.

The Choral group at Central High School is also located in a low income area. This group continues to show that talent is not tied to money, performing for many local events. Our aid will enable them to purchase new, better music and uniforms. Our aid will also help cover their costs as they travel to various community performances, as well competitions.

We hope that each chapter will become involved in our philanthropy. We ask that each chapter, regardless of its convention attendance, hold some type of fundraiser and contribute to these efforts. We also ask that each chapter select an arts program within their own communities to support and raise funding for, either in conjunction with their efforts for the Knoxville City

Call For Philanthropy Efforts
Schools or as a separate event. All you have to do is look around and we are sure you can find a group in need of your support. Document your efforts with a photo album, a page in your scrapbook, or a space on your chapter display. Submit pictures of your efforts along with a brief description of your efforts to national and be entered into the contest for best philanthropy, which will be awarded at our awards luncheon on Saturday at convention. Our three student board members will review both the philanthropy projects and the amounts raised and choose the school we feel have exemplified the spirit of Phi Eta Sigma in this effort. The chapter that is chosen will be honored not only with a plaque, but will help with the presentation of our donation to these groups at the luncheon.

In addition to philanthropy, we have added another new element to our convention in Knoxville. Upon your arrival on Friday afternoon, you will have the opportunity to attend round table discussions led by student and faculty board members. Topics will be varied and will include everything from study abroad experience to event planning and execution. These sessions will be in addition to the regular student led Saturday morning workshops, topics of which will include “Working with Other Student Organizations,” “Time Management,” and “Chapter Public Relations.”

Again, we cannot say how much this experience has meant to each of us. As we convene in 2010 to begin “Composing Tomorrow’s Perspective,” we, as the students of Phi Eta Sigma, are really meeting to let our voice, your voice, be heard. Members who attend convention have the rare opportunity to make decisions which will affect the direction and perception of one of the nation’s oldest and most prestigious collegiate honoraries. But you don’t have to wait until then. Start now. Take leadership in your own chapter. Start a project. Hold a game night. Organize a fundraising or charity event for a local group in need. Engage your campus in new and powerful ways. Seek guidance from your advisors and past members. One of the greatest assets of Phi Eta Sigma is its members. You make this organization what it is, and as we stand on the threshold of another millennia, you have the opportunity to take part “Composing Tomorrow’s Perspective!”

Sincerely,

Brad Lee
Sam Morin
Lindsay Painter

For The Year Ended June 30, 2009

NOTE A - NATURE OF ACTIVITIES AND SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Nature of Activities

Phi Eta Sigma is a national honor society which was founded on March 22, 1923, to encourage and reward high scholastic achievement among first-year students in institutions of higher learning. Phi Eta Sigma is a nonprofit organization and was incorporated on July 1, 1996.

Basis of Accounting

The financial statements of Phi Eta Sigma have been prepared on the accrual basis. Revenue is recognized when earned.

Financial Statement Presentation

Financial statement presentation follows the recommendations of the Financial Accounting Standards Board in its Statement of Financial Accounting Standards (SFAS) No. 117, Financial Statements for Not-for-Profit Organizations. Under SFAS No. 117, the Organization is required to report information regarding its financial position and activities according to three classes of net assets: unrestricted net assets, temporarily restricted net assets, and permanently restricted net assets. In addition, the Organization is required to present a statement of cash flows.

Inventories

Inventories are stated at the lower of cost or market with cost being determined by using the weighted-average cost method. The inventories consisted of the following at June 30, 2009 and 2008:

<table>

Accounts Receivable

No allowance for doubtful accounts is provided as all receivables are considered collectible.

Income Taxes

Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society, Inc. is a not-for-profit organization that is exempt from income taxes under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. The organization is not a private foundation under Section 509 (a)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code.

Deferred Convention Expense

Conventions are held every other year and therefore convention expenses are allocated over the two year period following the convention. Deferred convention expense reflects costs incurred in the year of the convention which will not be charged to expense until the following year.

Nature of Prior-Year Summarized Information

The financial statements include certain prior-year summarized comparative information in total but not by net asset class. Such information does not include sufficient detail to constitute a presentation in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles. Accordingly, such information should be read in conjunction with the organization’s financial statements for the year ended June 30, 2008, from which the summarized information was derived.

Functional Expenses

The cost of providing the organization’s programs and supporting services have been reported on a functional basis in the statement of activities. Accordingly, certain costs have been allocated among the programs and supporting services based on estimates made by management.

Fixed Assets

Fixed assets are recorded at cost less accumulated depreciation. Depreciation is computed using the straight-line method over the estimated useful lives of the assets. Maintenance and repairs are charged to expense as incurred; major renewals and betterments are capitalized. When items of property or equipment are sold or retired, the related cost and accumulated depreciation are removed from the accounts and any gain or loss is included in income.

Cash and Cash Equivalents / Cash Flow Information

For purposes of the Statement of Cash Flows, Phi Eta Sigma considers all unrestricted highly liquid investments with an initial maturity of three months or less to be cash equivalents. However, temporary cash and money market fund investments which are part of the organization’s investment pool, which is further described in Note D, are not included in cash for purposes of the Statement of Cash Flows since these funds have been set aside by either the organization’s board of trustees or by agreements with donors for long-term investment purposes.

Interest and income taxes paid for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2009 and 2008 were as follows:

<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>June 30, 2009</th>
<th>June 30, 2008</th>

<tbody>

</tbody>

Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect certain reported amounts and disclosures. Accordingly, actual results could differ from those estimates.

NOTE B - VALUATION OF INVESTMENTS

Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society, Inc. adopted SFAS No. 124, "Accounting for Certain Investments Held by Not-for-Profit Organizations" in 1997. Under SFAS No. 124, investments in marketable securities with readily determinable fair values and all investments in debt securities are reported at their fair values in the statement of financial position. The value of publicly-traded fixed income and equity securities is based upon quoted market prices and exchange rates, if applicable. Unrealized gains and losses are included in the change in net assets.
NOTE C - RESTRICTIONS ON NET ASSETS

Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society, Inc. classifies net assets as unrestricted, temporarily restricted, or permanently restricted based on the existence and/or nature of any donor restrictions. A portion of each initiation fee collected by Phi Eta Sigma is designated by initiates as a donation to permanently restricted net assets. In accordance with donor restrictions, interest and dividend earnings from permanently restricted assets are classified as temporarily restricted until used to fund the scholarship program. For the years ended June 30, 2009 and 2008, $2.50 of each individual initiation fee was designated by initiates as donations to permanently restricted assets.

In addition to these funds which have been temporarily or permanently restricted by donors, the Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society, Inc.’s Board of Trustees has set aside the following unrestricted net assets for the purposes described below:

NOTE D - INVESTMENTS

The Organization's investments are recorded at the quoted market value in accordance with SFAS No. 124, "Accounting for Certain Investments Held by Not-for-Profit Organizations". Unrealized gains and losses are included in the change in net assets in the accompanying statements of activities. Gains and losses and investment income derived from investments, receivables, and the like are accounted for as unrestricted, temporarily restricted, or permanently restricted based on restrictions, if any, imposed by donors. Most of the Organization’s agreements with donors (including initiates) who have created permanently restricted funds require that realized and unrealized gains and losses on investments be added or subtracted to the funds’ principal balances rather than being considered income available for use by the organization. Realized and unrealized gains and losses on the Organization’s unrestricted long-term investments are reflected as increases or decreases in unrestricted net assets.
